Labour Market Information (LMI)

What is LMI?

How can I find out more about various careers?

The image displays two browser windows side-by-side, illustrating resources for Labour Market Information (LMI).

Left Window: National Careers Service
URL: <https://nationalcareers.service.gov.uk/careers-advice>
The page features a navigation bar with links: Explore careers, Skills assessment, Find a course, Careers advice, and Contact us. A BETA banner asks for feedback. The main heading is "Careers advice". Below it, a paragraph states: "The National Careers Service can help you make career decisions throughout your life. From deciding your education route, planning a career change at any age or getting the job that is right for you." There are three tabs: "Making career choices" (selected), "Getting a job", and "Progressing your career". Under "Making career choices", there are links for "Helping young people make education and career choices", "Explore green careers", and "Education advice if you have special educational needs or a disability".

Right Window: NHS Jobs
URL: <https://www.jobs.nhs.uk/candidate/search>
The page features a navigation bar with links: Sign in, Create an account, English, and Cymraeg. A search bar is present. A BETA banner asks for feedback. The main heading is "Search for jobs in the NHS". Below it, there are three search criteria: "What?" (For example, job title or skills) with a text input containing "nurse"; "Where?" (For example, a postcode, town or city) with a text input; and "Distance" (Select the distance) with a dropdown menu set to "All locations". There are "More search options" and "Clear filters" links, and a green "Search" button. At the bottom, there is a section for "Advice for jobseekers".

Ensuring Information is relevant and upto date.

- Is the website a recognised site?
- Is the website dated and if so how old is the information?
- Can anyone make amendments to the website?
- Is the website UK based?
- Is the website safe for your young person to access?
